
The Environmental Justice Foundation (EJF), Oceana, The Pew Charitable Trusts and WWF are pleased to invite you to participate in a roundtable discussion to explore concrete ways for the European seafood industry to engage with the European Commission and third countries in effectively tackling illegal, unreported, and unregulated (IUU) fishing. Ideas resulting from the discussion will be shared with key Commission officials at a follow-up event. This roundtable discussion follows the event held on October 6, 2015 with the Commission and representatives of third countries.

Exploring the role of industry in the EU's carding process

April 28th 2016 12 – 3pm

Buro & Design Center, Esplanade 1 box 1, 1020 Brussels

(next to the Brussels Seafood Expo, opposite Halls 10 & 11)

The meeting will include a light lunch. The agenda will contain:

1. A brief recap of the “carding” process and the opportunities for industry engagement
2. An overview of the steps needed nationally in third countries to tackle IUU fishing
3. Discussion on key concerns for industry in this process
4. Using examples, identification of further concrete areas for industry engagement in support of the process and your needs

The event will be held under the Chatham House Rule. Participants are free to use the information received without identifying speakers or their affiliation. This is to allow for an open exchange of views. The Coalition will communicate outcomes of the event to participants, and a blog post may be published afterwards.

You are invited to confirm your attendance by Friday the 22nd April via email to: cfarthing@pewtrusts.org. This invitation is for the named invitee only.

We look forward to welcoming you.
